Tie vote defeats proposed landfill amendment

By Terry Wright

With a three to two vote, the Crawford County Board of Commissioners thought it had accepted the proposed amendment requested by NEMCOG on behalf of City Environmental Services to add nine new counties to the Crawford County solid waste management plan. The amendment was voted on at the regular commissioners' meeting held in the county courthouse on Wednesday, August 11.

Commissioner Robert McLachlan asked for and was granted an abstention from voting, citing a possible conflict of interest as a paid employee of City Environmental Services.

At their regularly scheduled meeting last Wednesday, prior to the confusing vote, the commissioners considered several pieces of correspondence concerning the landfill. The first, from the Department of Natural Resources, asked for a clarification to the amendment wording concerning reciprocal agreements. The DNR suggested this addition to the amendment:

"Outside counties which may dispose of waste at the City Environmental Services, Inc. of Waters Landfill for the 5 and 20 year planning period include.....only if the approved solid waste management plans of these counties authorize such disposal activity in Crawford County. Crawford County agrees to accept up to 100 percent of the solid waste generated in these counties for primary disposal in Crawford County."

Board Chairman Long agreed with the DNR suggestion stating, "We want it to be a two-way street, not just a one-way street. For us to have outside counties in our plan, we must recognize the fact that we must be named in their plan."

The other commissioners agreed and voted unanimously to include the additional wording.

NEMCOG RECOMMENDATIONS

Next, the commissioners considered a letter from Rick Duell, resource program specialist from NEMCOG. The letter had been forwarded to the commissioners by the Northeast Michigan Solid Waste Planning Committee as a result of its previous meetings on the proposed amendment and contained six specific recommendations to be considered.

From Duell's recommendations in that letter, the following actions were approved:

- An annual report from City Environmental Services to the commissioners, including the total cubic yards of waste accepted, cubic yards of special waste, and total remaining years of capacity.

- City Environmental Services will fund a household hazardous waste and waste reduction education program every year to every fifth grade in every county that is disposing of waste at the CES landfill.

- The Crawford County Board of Commissioners will establish a five-member solid waste advisory committee consisting of one county board representative, one township representative, one solid waste planning agency (NEMCOG) representative, one Michigan State University Cooperative Extension representative, and one City Environmental Services representative. The committee will meet on a quarterly basis to review household hazardous waste and waste reduction programs, annual facility reports, and citizen concerns.

TOWNSHIPS' PROPOSAL

Next, the commissioners discussed a letter signed by each of the six township supervisors that asked City Management for a guarantee of back-up landfills, cost guarantees, and indemnification from any environmental clean-up costs.

"It is not our position to interfere with township business," Chairman Long said. The board did, however, vote in agreement to the townships pursuing their requests.

With no further discussion on the amendment, Chairman Long called for a roll call vote on the amendment with the additional language from the DNR.

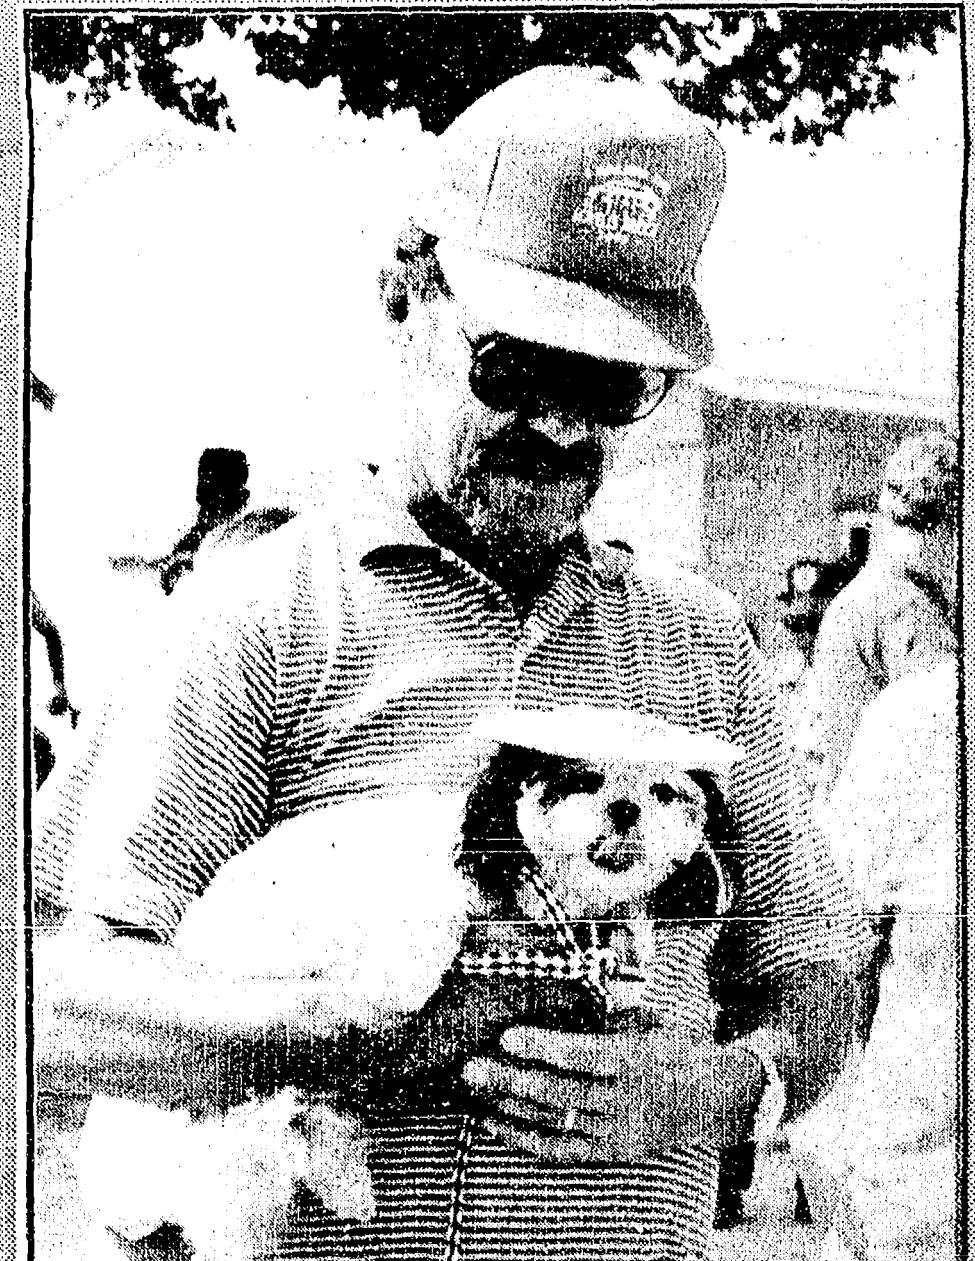

Commissioner McLachlan abstained, Commissioners Smock and Coy voted "No," and Commissioners Goodale, Long, and Mattis voted

Lovells bridge walk attracts large crowd

By Terry Wright

About 500 hearty walkers took part in the second annual Lovells bridge walk. The walk began at noon on Saturday at the Riverside Tavern in downtown Lovells, and ended at the township hall, a grueling quarter of a mile away. During the event, the walkers crossed the famous Lovells bridge, which boasts a total span of 58 feet, including a four foot approach. The impressive structure is 11 feet above the North Branch of the AuSable River and extends six feet below the river bed.

Each participant was given a certificate of participation and a handout of bridge statistics from the Lovells Volunteer Fire Department and Lovells Volunteer Medical First Responders, which organized and sponsored the event.

After the walk, participants were invited to enjoy an old-time picnic in the township park and those children who were not too tired from the walk, enjoyed many games.

The annual bridge walk celebration, though not as large as the Mackinac bridge walk, has become a major tourist event in the community. The handout facetiously pointed to many similarities between the two events. "Both offer beautiful scenic views. Both bridges provide two-way auto traffic. Both are suspension type bridges, and both bridges have quite a drop to the surface of the water."

"The Lovells bridge, however, offers many advantages over 'Big Mac,' the handout stated, including:

- Shorter length meaning less time for palms to get sweaty.
- No seagull splats on cars.
- Pedestrians can walk the Lovells bridge anytime.
- No yuppies, flatlanders, or fudgies hanging out.
- No obnoxious grating in the middle of the bridge.
- Much less intimidating to see a canoe beneath the bridge than an ore freighter.
- Less time to go across.
- Only needs to be painted every 20-30 years.
- Local merchants have more reasonable prices.
- No obnoxious signs claiming to sell the "original pastry," but you can get pasties at the Lovells Riverside Tavern.
- No electric bills.
- Even on a foggy day, you can see the top of the bridge.
- Lovells is much easier to spell.

of her team of doctors. Some thought the tumor was stable; others disagreed. A stable tumor could mean that it is dead or dormant. The difference between the two diagnoses mean the difference between life or death for Becca.

Because Becca needs constant attention, her mom Trina Jones can't work outside her home, and is confined to a life of social assistance. Without Medicaid help, Becca's medical bills of two to four hundred thousand dollars, would be insurmountable for a young single mother.

On Monday, Trina and Becca went back to the U-M Children's Hospital where the little girl was scheduled to receive a spinal tap, the removal of some of her spinal fluid. Trina was told before the procedure that if cancer cells were found in Becca's spinal fluid, it would mean that she has a new one.

"Becca," as she is called, had her first operation two years ago. At that time, her doctors thought they had removed all of the tumor in her head.

With the aid of radiation therapy, it did not reappear until 11 months later.

Today, however, the tumor surrounds much of her brain and is totally unoperable.

An MRI examination at the University of Michigan Children's Hospital in July brought disagreement tumor and nothing further can be done for her. If no cells were found, it would mean that her tumor is stable.

Throughout the ordeal of Becca's illness, Trina has kept her faith in God.

"I'm trusting in the Lord," Trina said.

"I believe that God can heal her and I believe He will. She deserves to be able to be a kid and she just can't while she's sick."

Trina explained that if Becca's tumor is dead, she will have to live cancer free for ten years before she will be considered medically cured.

Trina asks for the public's prayers in helping Becca with her illness.

Cellular One expands coverage

Cellular One, the cellular telephone service provider in northeast Michigan, has greatly expanded its coverage area with the addition of new cell sites. The new sites are located in Oscoda County near Fairview/Mio and in Crawford County near the Skyline ski area.

The new sites add almost $500,000 to the Cellular One capital investment in northeast Michigan. Total combined investment of equipment, construction and development now totals over $4 million.

The Cellular One system provides cellular service to virtually all of the population and major arteries in the northeast Michigan counties of Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Alpena, Montmorency, Otsego, Crawford, Oscoda and Alcona with a total of ten cell sites.

The Skyline site, the second site in Crawford County, is south of Grayling. It provides service along I-75 from the Roscommon County border to Grayling, and east on M-72 to the Oscoda County border.

The Cellular One headquarters is located in Gaylord. The sales, customer service and installation center is staffed with eight local employees. In addition, Cellular One has agents located throughout the eight counties of northeast Michigan.

DOODLES FROM THE TALL TIMBER

Wendell L. Hoover Park Interpreter, Hartwick Pines State Park

A few days ago a red fox scampered across the road in front of me, and as I slowed down, he or she also slowed down and, back away from the road, sat down to return my gaze. It had been awhile since a fox had crossed my trail and one part of my heritage considered this sighting as good medicine. My brother the fox was telling me that all was well, and I would go with good thoughts and a lighter heart.

The other part of my heritage considered the fact that the red fox was in a low cycle and I had not seen any for some time. The area where this fox was is typical of their preference for open areas (good for mice) adjacent to a forested area where the edge provides food and cover.

A red fox isn't very large, being only a little over three feet long (tail included) and weighing between eight and fifteen pounds. This was a typical red fox with a rusty-orange coat that will get thick and soft as the cold weather approaches. In addition to the color of the coat, the white belly and tip of tail, along with the black legs were also standard.

One source states that the fox is strictly monogamous with both adults caring for the young. The male feeds the female and young, and it will lead enemies away from the den at risk of life. This source also claims a life span of twelve years and that the fox is probably the world's greatest destroyer of mice.

BITS OF TALK

By Fay Bovee

Mrs. Henrietta Bear sends her greeting to her Grayling friends and says that she is doing very well. She often thinks of Grayling and the years that she spent here. She says that Frank Scott is recovering well from his surgery and is expected to be back to work.

Les and Kim Sales and her son, Bruce Randall of Washington, Georgia, flew to Michigan to spend some time with her parents, Bruce and Corrine Smith. Bruce spent some time in Houghton Lake with relatives and the Sales drove to the Upper Peninsula to visit Kim's relatives before returning to Grayling to stay with her parents.

Penny Miller of Troy, Ohio, visited her mother, Mrs. Alice Winslow, weekend before last. She was the honored guest at a baby shower on Saturday afternoon, August 7, given by her mother and sister, Mrs. Pat Fleagle of Chicago Ridge, Illinois. There were 14 guests from Grayling, Marshall, Battle Creek, Bay City, and a cousin from Germany who was on military leave. Penny received many lovely gifts.

Mrs. Miletta Taylor was in Lapeer, from Friday to Monday, weekend before last. She went to attend her 60th high school class reunion on August 7. While in the area, she visited her brother, Donald Scott, and sister, Mrs. Dorothy Annibal in Lapeer, her sister, Mrs. Beatrice Manley, at Ruby, and stayed with a daughter, Mrs. Henry Brockman, at North Branch.

Phelps, Barth married

Deanna Lynn Phelps and Norman Christopher Barth were united in marriage on Saturday, July 10, 1993, at the home of her parents. Reverend Doug Patterson officiated the outdoor ceremony.

Deanna is the daughter of James and Mary Phelps of Grayling. Norman is the son of Lenore Barth of Houghton Lake.

For her wedding the bride wore a full-length, satin and lace gown.

Serving as maid of honor was A.J. Pratt of Grayling. Bridesmaids were Linda Barth, Dawn Deisig, Donna Kaminski and Nikki Trenary. Flower girl was Andrea Randall. They all wore pastel floral print, T-length dresses.

Serving as best man was Mitch Mulka of Ypsilanti. Groomsmen were Tim Barth, David Barth, Jerry Gauthier and Kurt Kuzumski. Alex Randall was ring bearer. They were all dressed in black tuxedos.

After a honeymoon in Cancun Mexico, the couple are now making their home in Houghton Lake.

FOX RUN GOLF NEWS

By Dick Spenny

Fox Run's Tuesday couples league enters its fall championship playoffs with one match set between Linda and Gordy Mott meeting Louise and Dick Spenny for first flight honors. Louise's scratch 43 on the final night of play carried the team into the title round. Randy and Margo Richardson eliminated the need for any playoff by simply winning both halves of play. The sweep means that all races with the exception of the third flight have been set. The final night of regular play saw some excellent scoring. Net scores for the men included Al Barnhart's 37, Bob Vanderlaak's 36 and Tom Keiper's outstanding 28. Keiper and Jim Lederman tied for scratch honors at 43. Natalie Denemy posted a fine net 39 but in a family feud, Donna and Shirley Furstenau carded the low net tie at 32. Todd Jansen birdied twice on the front nine to lead the field in under par scores.

The Wednesday men's league has turned into a near runaway in all flights.

The lone exception is in second flight where Bill Denemy and Rodger Wagner hold a slim five point lead.

Phil Verdun and Eli Mathis. The lady is warming up in first flight as Jim Lederman and Tom Bailey revel in a 12 point lead over the field. Their championship playoff opponents will be Rick Marshall and Tery Abernathy. Third flight front runners Corky Gaylor and Hans Lantzsch are even further ahead with a 12.5 point lead. The rest of the flight just seems to continue to beat up on each other to widen the first place lead. Ed Furstenau and Jack Eckerly bask in a 9.5 point margin in fourth flight. Scott Fick and Dan Wyers still have time to overtake them with two weeks left on the schedule.

Wild card playoff spots are still there to be taken. Bob Jansen and Jeff Nester as well as Dick Bradley and John Funkey seem likely to slip into the championship rounds in first flight. Don Morre and Mike Griffin along with Jim Salvage and Glenn Jones are the ones to watch in second flight. Steve Green and Leo Johns appear to be locked into a slot. The rest of the field is tightly knotted and a fourth team can come from anywhere to shoot for the championship. Three teams are close for wild cards in fourth flight with Jim Watson and George Kehoe leading the pack.

In week 14, Bart Kjolhede drove his way to a gross 39 to lead the league. Two others, John Funkey and Todd Jansen posted 40 in hot pursuit.

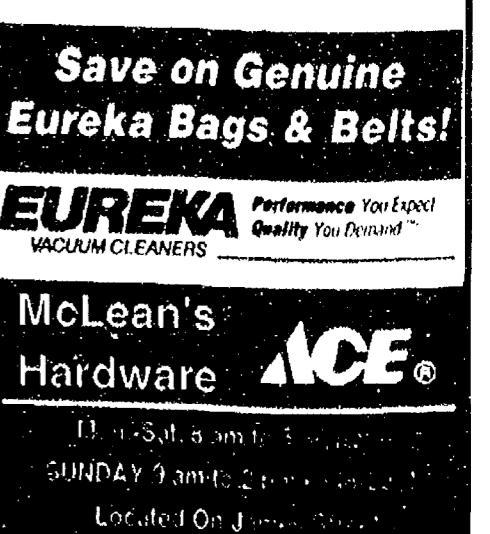

Jim Rutledge's net 32 out of the fourth flight led all players. Funkey, Jim Englehard and Phil Verdun all carved out fine 33s. Todd Jansen's net 33 concluded a fine week of play.

When net scores are discussed, it's best to look to the Fox Run ladies league where Tana Stuck shot an amazing 23 to lead the universe. Carolyn Gates' 31 was a distant second. Carol Ostling, in a sub role, smoothed out a great scratch 36 with two birdies. Linda Verdun also had two tweeters in a 39 round. Debi Nedrick and Ann Scott hold a 66 to 61 point lead in first flight over Barb Chapdelaine and Jackie Tindall. Second flight leaders Linda Mott and Joyce Routley are ahead by three over Margo Richardson and partner Jo Ann Tyler as well as the duo of Joan Waterman and Ruby Weigle. Joey Marshall and Tana Stuck enjoy a wider, nine point lead over Jan Funkey and L. B. Nester in flight three.

Records kept in the men's league over the summer show a league "best ball" record of 54, 18 under par. In contrast, the league's "worst ball" score is an unbelievable 231, 159 strokes over par. The best and worst were taken from all cards turned in for the summer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Engler envisions stunning difference in schools next year

(What follows is an open letter from Governor John Engler to all Michigan parents and students regarding the eliminating of school property taxes and the opportunity to improve our schools.)

To Michigan Parents and Students,

My vision is for Michigan children to get the best quality education in the world. Every child must have an equal opportunity to learn, to excel and to succeed.

We now have a historic opportunity to make that vision a reality. By putting an end to an unfair, burdensome, and inequitable school property tax system, Michigan now has the chance to start fresh and design a new system that puts our children first.

Our goal must be a school system that is second to none and a tax system that encourages economic growth and job creation.

Keep the best, improve the rest — that's the foundation for our reform strategy. And as the reform process moves forward, I want to hear your ideas to help our kids learn better and to improve their performance in school.

Michigan's current education system was designed to meet the needs of the 19th century — not the challenges of today's fast-paced high tech world. Working together, we must build a world-class education system that makes Michigan a model for the nation and prepares our kids for the jobs of the 21st century.

These basic principles are the framework for our reform agenda:

• Quality comes first. Too many students today are ill-prepared for the workplace or college. Our schools simply aren't reaching them. We cannot tolerate losing a single child. Schools must challenge our kids, make them excited about learning, and push them to perform to the best of their abilities.

• Children will learn the basics. Michigan's children will learn the skills they need to find a good job or to continue their education in college — basic skills such as reading, writing, and math. They'll learn how to solve complex problems, take instruction, work productively with other people, and know the difference between right and wrong.

• Parental control through parental involvement. The way to strengthen local control is to give parents control. Right now, wealthy parents can choose their children's schools by choosing where to live. All parents should have the right to pick the school that is the best for their children.

• Teachers will have the freedom to inspire excellence. Teachers will be able to break free from bureaucratic rules, use new ideas and methods, and to reach out to students who need special help. They'll even be able to join together with colleagues to form their own charter schools.

• Schools will compete to enroll students. In Detroit, the first charter public school will open next month. More than 5,000 children have applied for the 330 slots at the Wayne State University Public School. That tells me parents demand different kinds of schools; they demand better alternatives. For example, Michigan's new schools could specialize in teaching the humanities, or technical and vocational skills, or computer science.

While giving more options to parents and students, school competition will also cut administrative costs — providing more dollars to be spent directly for kids in the classroom. The possibilities for reform and school improvement are only limited by the bounds of our imagination, our willingness to change, and the strength of our commitment to give our children the best possible education.

By the potential for historic education reform, the school property tax cut reduces the burden on homeowners by more than $5.7 billion — the biggest tax cut in Michigan history. The bottom line is that improving our schools and creating a more competitive and fair tax system will make Michigan a more attractive home for people to live and for industry to create jobs.

There's no question that replacement revenues will be needed — that's the easy part. Designing new and better schools is the first — and most difficult — step we must take. Our timetable is to have the necessary work at the State Capitol done by the end of December, so everybody will get six months next year to prepare for the phase-in. And when we are done, I envision a difference in education that is simply stunning.

One year from now, the new Michigan schools will open — schools that will change the very definition of public schooling. And new doors will open for our children so that they can excel in the workplace of the future, provide for their families, and lift Michigan to the head of the class.

Potpourri: On Blanchard, Leno, Riegle, etc.

TIME ONCE MORE for one of our infrequent strolls, barefoot among the potpourri ...

* * * * * LIFE AFTER POLITICS — Politics appears to be good training for earning a living. Former Gov. James Blanchard is a case in point.

Mr. Blanchard recently was confirmed as ambassador to Canada, a post in which he likely will do a bang-up job.

During his confirmation hearings, personal finances came up, as they usually do these days in Washington deliberations.

Mr. Blanchard is an attorney. His introduction to the law — and public service — was as an assistant attorney general in Lansing under Frank Kelley. He went from there to Congress, where he served eight years before his eight years as governor.

In those busy times, he never really practiced law. His pay in his public jobs topped out at around $100,000 a year or so as governor.

But what did he earn last year as a lawyer-lobbyist, operating between Washington and Michigan? A respectable $757,685, which is pretty good walking around change for a virtual rookie as an attorney, in only his second year out of office.

His pay as ambassador, incidentally, will be $123,100 a year. In addition, the ambassador receives an official residence.

As Michigan governor, he had two taxpayer-supported residences: one in Lansing and one on Mackinac Island.

Who says politics doesn't pay?

CLINTON TAXES — President Clinton wants to make his new taxes retroactive to January 1, 1993. Under this approach, we all have accumulated more than half-a-year of tax liability without even knowing it.

Sen. Bob Dole had a good quip about retroactive Clinton taxes.

Mr. Clinton should have the good will to start his taxes on January 21 — rather than January 1, Mr. Dole mused, thereby exonerating the George Bush administration from the onus of levying the new Clinton taxes.

Last night talk show host Jay Leno topped Mr. Dole, however. As long as the Clinton taxes are retroactive, Mr. Leno suggested, perhaps the whole political picture should revert to the past, too — back to November 1992, so we could all vote over again.

* * * * *

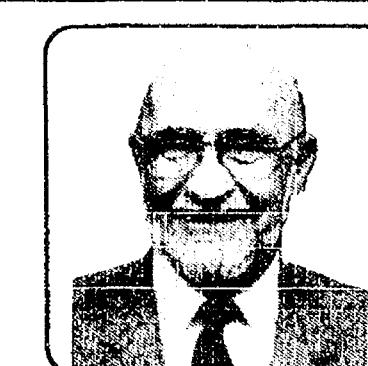

NO NEWS HERE — Sen. Donald Riegle, facing a tough fight for re-election as Michigan's senior senator, recently announced grandly the support of five female U.S. Senators.

So what's new? The five female lawmakers endorsing Mr. Riegle all are Democrats; the news would be if they did not support Mr. Riegle, not if they do support him.

It also would be news if the other two women senators announced support of Mr. Riegle. They're both Republican. And it won't be news either if those two wind up being who ever runs on the Republican ticket next year.

* * * * *

UPTON DEMURS — The reasoning of U.S. Rep. Fred Upton for not running for Mr. Riegle's senate spot this year makes a lot of sense. In a nutshell, Mr. Upton decided it was more work and personal disruption than he wanted to tackle at this time.

"I don't have it in me to be on the road for 16 months, living out of a suitcase, raising a million dollars, and being away from my kids," Mr. Upton said.

"Life's too short."

That's good reasoning. Apparently Mr. Upton is willing to put up with much of the same hassle to continue in the Congress, where campaigning also involves raising money, travel, and being apart from family. It's all a matter of degree.

* * * * *

"The only exercise some of us get is letting our imagination run wild."

"Companies are really scaling back on expenses. When my uncle retired, instead of giving him a watch, they just told him the time."

"According to the latest studies, more than 40 percent of teens talk openly with their parents about sex. And more than 20 percent of the parents are able to use what they learn from those talks."

Northern Views

By Jon Thompson

This is it.

This will be my last column as editor of the Avalanche. After more than 12 years here — the last seven as editor — I'll be leaving to go try different things.

What have I learned working at a community newspaper for more than a decade?

I've discovered quite a lot about people. The interesting feature of this job is that you deal with the successes and failures of people. You see the highlights of their jobs, interests, and hobbies.

I learned something from just about every person I've ever interviewed. Although many of my friends know I'm quite capable of ignoring people around the Avalanche on a busy Tuesday production day, I also had to become skilled at listening to people. In my 17 years of interviewing people, I learned how to understand people from all walks of life — doctors, wood cutters, canoe racers, biologists, gardeners.

It's hard to really put yourself in someone else's shoes. My job made me do that and it definitely broadened my viewpoints.

* * * * *

The Avalanche has a tradition that I will miss being a part of. If you think about it, a small town newspaper is the best source on the history of a community and its residents. Not only do you learn a lot about pioneers, ancestors, and local residents, but after years of reading stories from old issues of the newspaper, your view of life tends to change. Looking at past events from a distance seems to place them in proper perspective. You realize sometimes are not worth getting upset or angry about. There isn't enough time in our lives to let minor problems come between family, friends, and important goals.

And so it goes, as Linda Ellerbee says. The mark I leave is short in Avalanche time. From 1882, the Avalanche has known only four other editors:

Dr. Oscar Palmer	1882-1911
Oscar Schuman	1911-1944
Robert Strong	1944-1967
Whitey Madsen	1967-1986

This Thursday I add my name to the list:
Jon Thompson 1986-1993.

FROM OUR CORNER

By Whitey Madsen

By un-popular demand ... The turkey is back ... with the editor's permission ... for one issue ...

We were informed the other day that five Avalanche readers over their morning cups of coffee had a vote ...

Results, 3 to 2, for the turkey ...

I blushed, when we were told of the outcome, I didn't know we had that many readers when we put the turkey to rest ...

I was also told not to get my hopes up too high ... the dissenters were still trying to muster up two more votes to keep us in dry dock ... (imagine that, dry dock, that must be without orange pop).

For this week, while I have the majority ... here-with a few viewpoints, and my ever struggle for my den, from the ole fella ...

First, I had written a column for the Houghton Lake Resorter on the election of President Clinton ... I hoped that a cotton-pickin' president would be better than the peanut farmer on the Demo ticket before him ...

The jury is still out ... but my faith is dwindling every time I pick up the newspaper.

An idle thought ... I still wish President Bush had been re-elected. I had reservations for Barbra Streisand in an igloo in Siberia ...

To answer a couple long time readers of the Snow Slide ...

Question? Did I ever get into my den after I retired?

Answer—yes, just for a short time ...

After begging for months, my bride decided to clear a path from the door to my desk and typewriter so if I wished I could type (hoping an editor catches all my dumas) wisdom that I have gained in quite a few summers and winters in northern Michigan.

After about a year, the boxes on the floor were taken care of. I was elated ... now comes cleaning her stuff off my davenport ...

I finally got the cushion on the end cleared so I could bring out a box of my mementos accumulated during my travels that also included things from my Uncle Sam's sponsored voyage across the Pacific and back.

To this day, I have never been horizontal on my couch ... not for a morning nap, afternoon nap, or anytime I felt like taking a nap ...

Now the end cushion is filled again ... I guess I wasn't sitting there when she was moving junk around ...

A while back, I noticed a box had been added — next thing, there was another ... one must have been female, and the other male ... now there are four ...

I don't dare bitch too much, I still have passage way to my desk and typewriter ...

We were talking the other day and I mentioned there were things I couldn't find ...

She came back and said, "come next summer, I will have put up with you for fifty years ... you will have no problem finding your suitcase, it will be on the front porch, and the doors will be locked."

Now I know how Rodney Dangerfield feels.

Before I close the Corner, I thought you may like to read about my recent excursion to Indianapolis, Ind., henceforth, Indy, Ind.

I was asked by Larry Smith, who is with circulation at the Avalanche, if I would accompany him to Indy ... he had business there and his wife, Jeannie, didn't care to make an overnight trip ...

Nothing to do ... Jeannie would be on the links, so why not, I was designated as the navigator (back in the old west, that was riding shot gun) times have changed ...

Bright and early Friday morning (before my eyes were open) Larry picked me up and we were off ... Mt.

I guess it was fun ... and I'm sure that Jeannie and Thelma were happy we left for a weekend ... what the hell can an ole duffer at 80, and a semi-ole duffer at 72 do to get into trouble unless the driver makes a wrong turn ...

82nd Street, Larry, and if I ever ride shot gun for you again, I'm going to know where the target is ...

To my friend on the AuSable, Dudley Foster, alias, Santa Claus, thank you for your appreciation when we were writing Our Corner, that included the turkey ... this one is for you ... Cheers.

NOTES FROM THE WOODS

By Nancy Lemmen

Two former editors-in-chief of The Norseman, Grayling High School's newspaper, went on to positions at the Michigan Daily, U-M's highly respected student newspaper.

Last week I wrote about Adam Anger and his job on the news staff. This week, Jordan Stancil talks about his stint:

Jordan chose to write for the opinion section of the newspaper.

"I have been planning on working for the Michigan Daily since taking journalism in high school," he said, regretful of the fact that there was no GHS newspaper after he graduated.

"Next year's people won't know about it. It's not realistic to expect someone to (apply for a college newspaper position) because they won't know what is available. I wouldn't have if I hadn't taken Publications class in high school."

Jordan said that while he thought it would be fun to write for the Daily, he also knew that being a staff member would be a way to make friends.

"At a big school, it's the only way to meet people. Unless you're lucky with your housing assignment, you need to play in the band or be in a club of some kind."

While he agreed with Adam that everyone is welcome to try writing for the Daily, he said he never saw evidence of weak writers' work.

"The editors work with you and tell you how to change and you read other people's writing. Both (Adam and I) are better writers. The editors kind of change your style. Every time you write a story, you go in for a rewrite, they say 'this doesn't sound right,' they ask your opinions. You just pick it up."

Opinion page staffers write one or two editorials most weeks. Some of Jordan's assignments included pieces on Ross Perot, college football commercials, Brett Kimberlin's impact on the Quayle/Bush campaign, the University Regents' Code, law students providing legal assistance for Haitian refugees, the United States' role in Bosnia and an obituary on Thurgood Marshall.

Writers then have 24 to 48 hours to research and write their pieces. They can make as many phone calls as are necessary. Jordan, for example, was able to call Kimberlin's attorney for his editorial on the inmate.

"If you're writing about Carl Levin, you have to call his office. That's pretty routine."

They also have access to the six and a half million volumes in the U-M library system.

Except for a building supervisor, the Daily is run completely by the student staff, said Jordan.

"All editing decisions are made by students. There are no adults except for us — if you want to count us. It took me a couple months to realize anything we want to put in the paper, we can. There is no censorship, no interference by the administration."

And the Michigan Daily is a publication that does not avoid controversy.

"Someone printed an ad saying the Holocaust was a Jewish conspiracy and there was a national news story about it in the New York Times, Washington Post and Detroit Free Press, saying it was revisionism. But nobody (on the staff) got into trouble."

Although U-M has no journalism school, students can piece together journalism majors by taking the right assortment of courses, said Jordan.

"A lot of the editors want to be journalists. (Getting a job) depends on the quality of work you do in college. It's a serious thing. It's not just like an activity; it's their job. You can't say to the Chicago Tribune, 'I was just fooling around with this editorial.'"

Still, while the newspaper in its entirety is a serious venture, it contains a lot of humor as well.

"The front page is always serious. But the opinion page can have irreverent cartoons. The arts page, which has pretty good writing, can be on the lighter side, like the entertainment page of the Free Press."

The opinion staff meets every Friday and Sunday to take story proposals. The paper runs one local editorial every day in order to keep the focus on U-M and Ann Arbor, but there are also state and national editorials to maintain balanced coverage. All editorials run unsigned.

"People make proposals, then there's debate, then there's a vote. You or someone else can write it. But you'll never be assigned an opinion article you voted against. Any future editorials cannot go against what the newspaper said before unless it makes a big change in tradition. We would have to say, 'We're changing our mind because . . .' and that is a big deal."

Because the Daily has to keep a constant focus, it is important that it follows a consistent orientation on the political spectrum.

"The Daily is very left-winged," said Jordan. "It is probably more liberal than any big daily I've ever read. There's a lot we print that I disagree with or think is a topic we don't need to write about, such as the Indian mascot at the University of Illinois. The left-winged orientation comes from the tradition of the paper."

The Daily was liberal in the '60s, when Tom Hayden was editor. Now it's moving more to the center."

"If you're a liberal, you want to write for the Daily. If you're really conservative, you can write for the Michigan Review. It doesn't accept university support. It gets its money from conservative organizations and alumni. I've heard rumors that it gets money from William F. Buckley and the National Review. It is considered one of the best conservative college papers. Some of the writing is top-of-the-line, it has good book reviews and it's very esoteric and academic. But they try to make incidents out of tiny issues. The whole paper is an editorial document, not a newspaper."

He said that, although he has no firm plans, he may eventually run for opinion editor.

"The editor-in-chief and opinion editors have to be elected by the entire editorial staff. All other editors are elected by their own staffs. The opinion page represents all the pages and the editor-in-chief obviously is everyone's boss."

"Looking back," he said, "I think we did well on the Norseman. We had some good writing and a good format. We took a thing that didn't exist and turned it into a real newspaper, we edited it for mistakes, we covered things in the school, we caused controversy. People read it. I don't think we were especially innovative or anything, but before us, a newspaper just wasn't there."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What happened to half of Marathon length?

August 14, 1947:

"Final arrangements have been completed for the Michigan Canoe Championship—a nonstop marathon canoe race down the mainstream of the AuSable from Grayling through Mio to Oscoda — an estimated 240 miles."

July 23, 1993:

"AuSable River Grayling to Oscoda Canoe Marathon 120 miles." The question is — what happened to the other 120 miles of river?

Some of the early racers covered the 240 miles in about the same time as the 120 mile racers. They must have been flying.

One possible reason for the river being shortened could be Paul Bunyan might have hitched his big blue ox called Babe on the bank at Oscoda. Paul could have been stationed at the upper end at Grayling. By pulling together, they could have straightened out the river, eliminating such places as the 'pull over' and other curves in the river.

As you all know Paul Bunyan dug Lake Superior and buried the sand in one night.

Volunteer your time to make Independence Day more festive America is a wonderful country to live in, isn't it? The freedom of choice, speech, to express our own thoughts, to have independence . . . this is what Independence Day is all about. Somewhere along the line we strayed away from the real values and reasons behind our Declaration of Independence.

I would like to suggest that if your readers would like to make Independence Day more festive, then they should volunteer their time to make a difference.

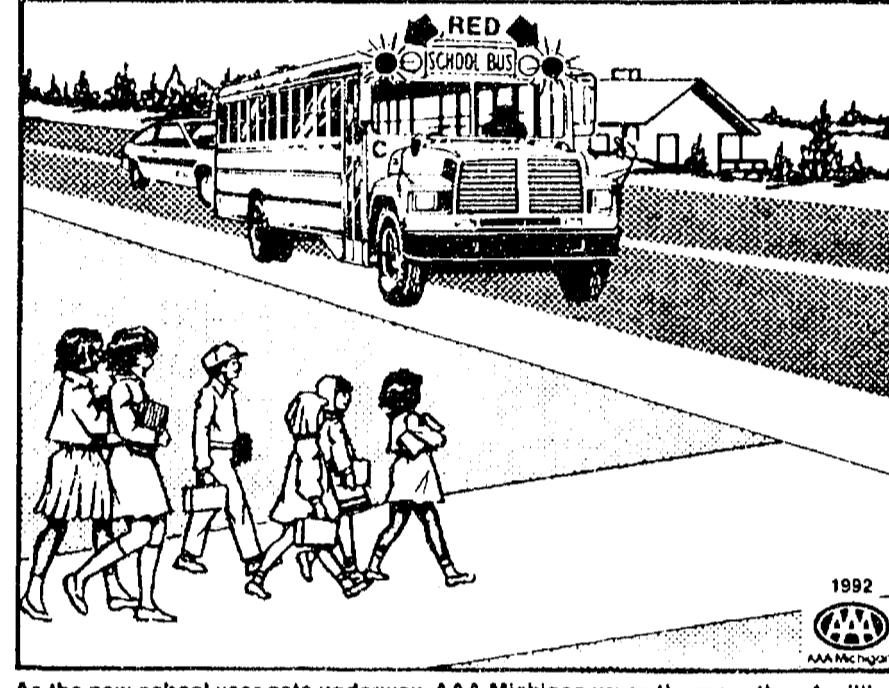

During my past two years as a resident of Grayling, I have worked in the food stand in the park during the 4th of July celebration for the Grayling Youth Booster Club. I also have worked on the parade for the AuSable River Festival, hosted by the Grayling Promotional Association. Both of these groups deserve praise for the work they do, and they are in need of help, always.

We need to get back to the real meaning behind the celebrations . . . Independence Day is about the right to make choices, like whether or not to have or be in a parade. Is Christmas really about giving and receiving gifts? And where did all those eggs come from on Easter?!

STAND BACK FOR SAFETY

As the new school year gets underway, AAA Michigan urges the more than 1 million Michigan youngsters who ride school buses to always wait for the bus at a safe spot well back from the road. Traffic in both directions must stop when the bus is stopped and overhead red lights are flashing.

WEEKLY SYNDICATED COLUMN BY PERCY ROSS

Raising Cane and Kids, but not Grass

Dear Mr. Ross: You really made me feel like a heel when you granted my request to buy shoes for my 10 children. However, you didn't make me regret my choice to have my children—all 10 of them. They are healthy, beautiful and smart.

At the risk of humiliating myself again, I'm asking for a swingset. We have the only pool in the neighborhood and all the kids are over here wanting to go swimming. It's only a galvanized pool, but the kids love it. Being that it's so small, some kids have to wait their turn. Yesterday I had 12 kids in the yard all under 8. We only let 6 in the pool at a time, so in order to make their wait more fun, please grant me the money to put up a swingset. Got to go—someone's at the door. Listen, don't think of it as giving money to a woman with 10 kids—think of it as donating a swingset to a community center.

Mrs. M. P. . . St. Louis, MO

Dear Mrs. P.: I apologize for the hard time I gave you when I granted your request to outfit your 10 children with new shoes. In retrospect, what counts isn't the number of children a person has, it's the quality of life you provide for them. Evidently, your kids fair better than most. With egg on my face, please accept $200 for a swingset.

Mrs. P. T. . . Flint, MI

Dear Mr. Ross: My request concerns my 11 year old granddaughter who has leukemia. She is currently waiting to be well enough to have a bone marrow transplant. Since being diagnosed five months ago, she has yet to return to school. My daughter had to quit her job because she's needed at the hospital. Chemotherapy is scary. Sometimes I wonder which of them is stronger—my daughter or my granddaughter. It's inspirational to see how brave these little fighters with cancer can be. My granddaughter is definitely one of the little soldiers.

Her father works full-time and has medical benefits. Even with insurance, the bills are mounting. The reason I'm writing is that they will not ask for help. They are

SHARING THE ROAD SAFELY

Question: The single most effective way to prevent traffic injuries is:

a. Never ride in a passenger vehicle.

b. Always wear your safety belt and make sure children are properly buckled up.

c. Only ride in a vehicle with an air bag.

d. Never exceed the speed limit. Slow down!

The best answer is "b: Always wear your safety belt and make sure children are properly buckled up." Few of us have the option of never riding in a car, especially with children out of school and the summer days filled with activities of all kinds and shapes — most of which seems to require travel.

Much of our time tends to involve running errands. Short trips to and from the park, grocery store, laundry, mall, dentist, church and school, fill our days. Unfortunately, this is when most crashes occur, as well as most injuries. The old adage, "most accidents occur within 25 miles of your home," still holds true.

We feel a little safer buckling up when confronted with a long trip, high speed roads, during bad weather or when the route is unfamiliar. But, we should extend that safety margin to include any time we are in a car. We are most likely to have a crash where we do most of our driving. This means a serious crash can happen any time, even in your own neighborhood, on the way to work or grocery shopping.

Sure, slowing down helps reduce the severity of crashes, but wearing a safety belt, and making sure that all children are properly buckled up, limits the severity of injuries to you. Speeders are risk takers. Unfortunately, they sometimes take risks that include your family.

"Ah," but you say, "my car has a driver side air bag. I'm covered if the worst happens." Let us assume for a moment that the crash in which you are involved is the ideal type for deployment of an air bag — head on (even though the majority of crashes occur at a variety of angles including side impact and rear). What about your passengers? And, if you are not wearing your safety belt, the odds are you will "submarine" under the air bag and dashboard. Perhaps it is better than being thrown through the windshield, but remember, these are ideal crash conditions.

Traffic crash deaths have dropped in Michigan. Our fatality rate continues to be below the national average. But, we cannot afford a single traffic crash-related death, especially when we know most are preventable.

If you are one of those people who only wear your safety belt some of the time — when you think about it, or when you are not in a hurry, or when you don't have to fuss with getting the baby settled in — please reconsider. Safety belts are proven lifesavers, and the odds are against you if you are "just running to pick up a quart of milk."

No one should play the odds with their life.

Eastern equine encephalitis risk higher this summer

Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE), commonly known as "sleeping sickness" is a real risk this summer due to the proliferation of mosquitoes in Michigan, according to Bill Schuette, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA).

"This virus is transmitted through fresh-water swamp mosquitoes to horses and other equine," said Schuette. "With the large outbreak of mosquitoes this year, the potential for a disease outbreak is a very real concern."

EEE can cause acute brain inflammation in horses and can be confused with rabies. The fatality rate often reaches 90 to 95 percent.

The virus can also cause encephalitis in humans but people don't have to worry about catching EEE from horses.

Mosquitoes that feed on birds and mammals are responsible for (517) 373-1077.

Tips for traveling with young children

by Roy Spangler
Michigan State University Extension

Long car trips can become a test of endurance as the children become bored and begin whining, squabbling and complaining. However, there are some things we can do to help reduce irritability and make the trip more pleasant for everyone.

• Stick to normal eating and sleeping routines as much as possible.

• Stop every two hours, or sooner if you notice tensions beginning to rise. Allow ten minutes for the children to run and diffuse the energy that would otherwise be fuel for conflict.

• Rotate seating arrangements; even adults can take a turn sitting in the back seat.

• Establish ground rules regarding personal space when in the car, since perceived violations of space are the basis of many sibling arguments.

• Break up the monotony of periodic intervals with wrapped surprises. They can be inexpensive items. The point is having something to open and something new or different to pass the time with.

• Provide a lunch box or a covered cake pan for each child to bring along small items to keep them occupied in the car and while waiting at restaurants.

The covered cake pan can also provide a smooth surface for drawing or writing.

• Take along an inexpensive cassette tape player, with or without headphones, for listening to music or books on tape. You can record some of their favorite story books on tapes, too. If the player also records, they can make up their own stories or talk about their trip and have fun playing it back.

• For really long trips, provide a "treasure bag" for the things they will collect along the way. At the end of the day, have a show-and-tell time about that day's treasures. When the bag gets full, the children need to decide which treasures to keep and which to throw away. The capacity of the bag is the limit.

• Carry drinking water in the car. Fill cups sparingly to help prevent spills as the car goes over bumps. An old bedspread or towel on the car seat under the children will absorb small spills, catch crumbs and keep vinyl seat covers from getting too hot.

Take steps to prevent phone fraud

FREDERIC NEWS

Consumers face higher risk of long-distance telephone fraud during the vacation season. More calls will be made from telephones in public locations, such as airports, train stations, bus terminals, resorts, and campgrounds. Many of these calls will be placed using calling cards issued by a local or long-distance telephone company.

Unauthorized people may try to get calling card and personal identification numbers by watching callers dial these numbers or by overhearing the numbers being read to an operator at a public pay telephone. The cards may also be lost or stolen.

Also, when customers are away on vacation, unauthorized people may try to have telephone companies bill for "third-number" calls to home phone lines that are being answered by an answering machine.

What steps can consumers take to prevent telephone fraud?

If possible, use a telephone that reads your calling card number from the magnetic strip on the back of the card or take steps to prevent others from watching you dial your card number or overhearing you give your number to an operator. Never give your calling card number to any unknown person.

Immediately report a lost or stolen card to the local or long-distance telephone company that issued it. Ask the company to cancel your card and issue you a new one.

Consider disabling your answering machine or recording a message for your answering machine stating your refusal to accept third-party billing.

Customers with telephone fraud questions or complaints should contact the Informal Complaints Branch of the Federal Communications Commission at 1-202-632-7553 or the Michigan Public Service Commission at 1-800-292-9555.

They also had the opportunity to visit with Kathy Newberry of Traverse City and Ken and Linda Newberry and children Christopher, Amanda, Chelsea and Ashley of Vanderbilt.

Everyone was able to attend the annual Newberry family picnic on August 7, held at the Otsego County Park. On their return trip to Virginia, they visited their sister and husband, Janet and Steve Mosher of Davisburg.

Grayling Eagles serve WAM 300 cyclists

On Friday evening, over 200 people stood in line as members of Grayling's Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie 3465 served up a spaghetti dinner. What was special about those waiting in line is that they were all participants in the sixth annual Wish-A-Mile (WAM) 300 Bicycle Tour.

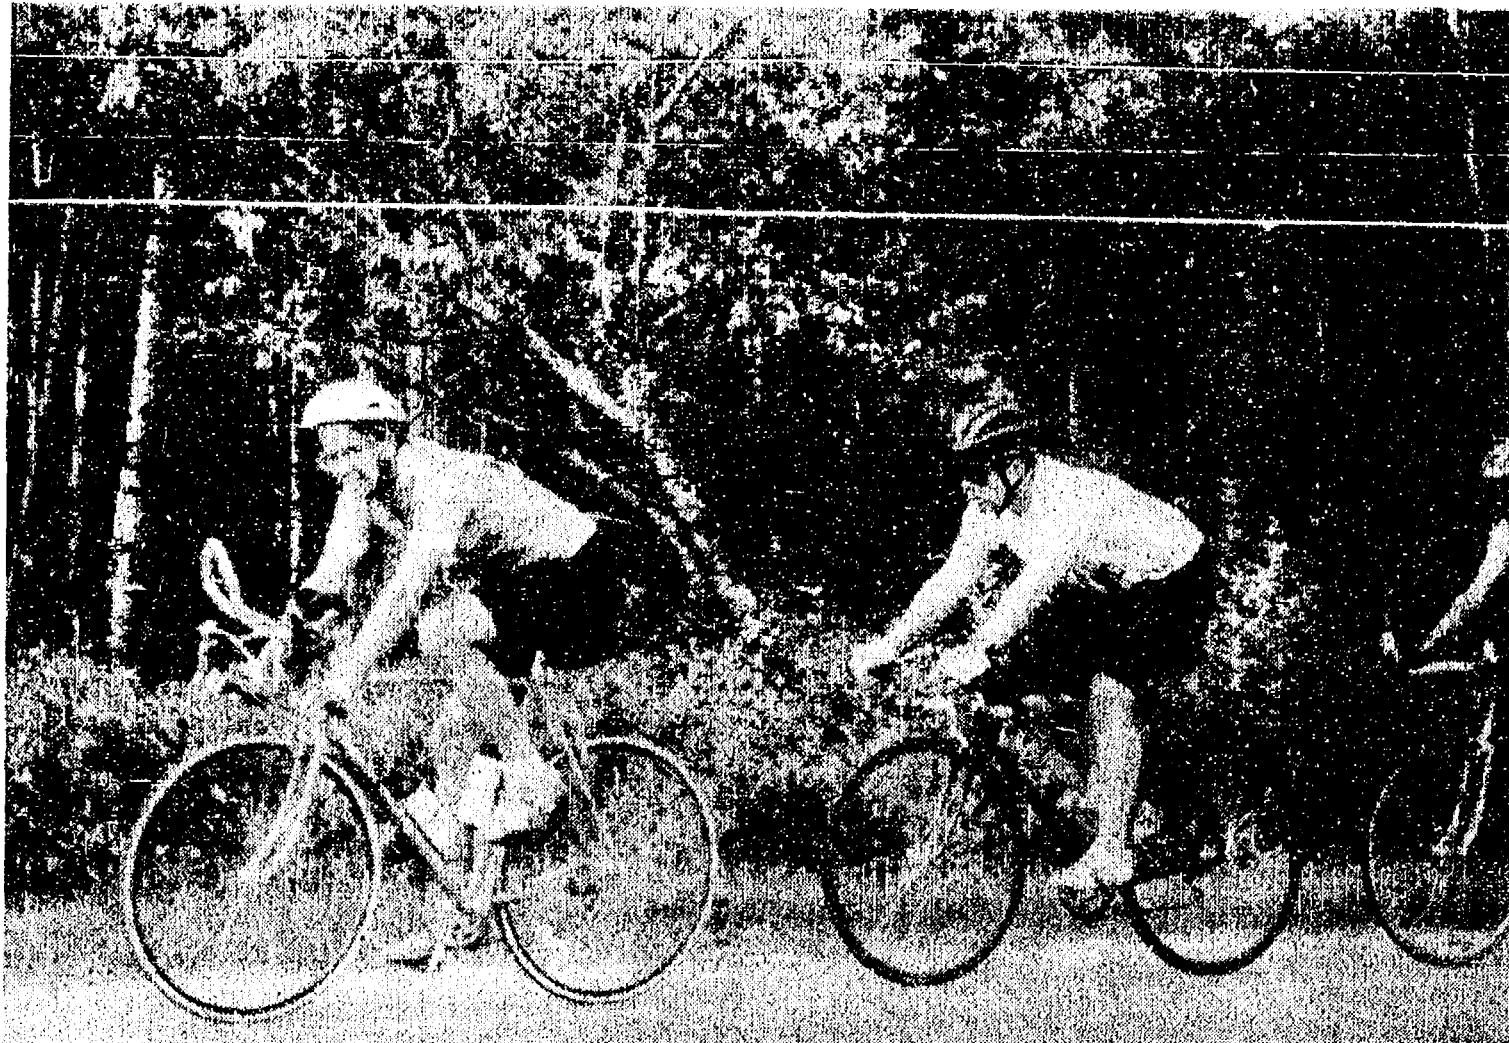

WAM 300 is a 300 mile fundraiser for Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan, a charity that fulfills the wishes of children ages three to seventeen who suffer from life-threatening illnesses. The three day tour of Michigan's Lower Peninsula starts at St. Ignace, north of the Mackinac Bridge, and winds its way south through Gaylord, Grayling, Roscommon, Midland, and Whitmore Lake, and ends in Plymouth, northeast of Detroit.

Throughout the WAM 300, various groups and organizations provide meals for the participants of the fundraiser. While in Roscommon, the bicyclists and support crews spent the night at Roscommon High School.

H.O.M.E.

HOME OWNERS MORTGAGE EVALUATION

Most home buyers will agree: Real estate can be really confusing. Especially when you're not sure what you can afford.

The best advice? before you get a house, get a H.O.M.E. A Home Owners Mortgage Evaluation at GSB.

The H.O.M.E. is a simple form that shows you exactly how much house you can afford. And exactly how much financial responsibility a house would mean. In other words, it helps you put a roof over your head without getting in over your head. What's more, there's no cost, no obligation: a H.O.M.E. is free.

Drop by GSB at 305 Michigan Avenue,
Grayling or 1684 South U.S. 27, Gaylord,
Michigan and ask us about a H.O.M.E. A GSB mortgage specialist will be glad to fill one out for you and answer any of your questions.

Or call 517-348-7631 (in Grayling) or 517-732-8900 (in Gaylord).

Then once you find out how much house you can afford, we'll show you all the ways you can afford it, with one of GSB's many mortgage programs, including fixed-rate mortgages and adjustable-rate mortgages and our first time homebuyer program.

Take the confusion and anxiety out of buying a

PRIZE WINNERS—Eric Hulbert and Doug Pratt, members of the 'Hogs R Us' pig club in Frederic, won several prizes at the Otsego County Fair with their swine.

4-H pig club members win ribbons at fair

Although it was the Frederic 'Hogs R Us' pig club's first year as a 4-H club, members did well at the Otsego County Fair. The club's leader is Donna Pratt.

The members competed well and returned home with top honors. Doug Pratt took his 260 pound barrow named Frank-N-Swine and received best market swine, overall grand champion swine and grand champion heavyweight swine.

Eric Hulbert took his 230 pound gilt named Rose Ann and was awarded reserve grand market swine, overall reserve grand swine, grand champion lightweight swine and grand champion novice showmanship.

Bobby Deman also entered his 225 pound gilt named "Ziggy the Piggy."

The members competed against 25 other swine.

Melanie, Jon and Stephan Kuznicki were unable to find a swine but were helpful at club meetings and during the week of the fair.

Terra Energy, Ltd., Main Oak Family Dentistry, and Countryside Homes were sponsors, helping to purchase the animals and some of their feed.

Terra Energy, Ltd., of Traverse City and Glen's Market of Gaylord purchased three swine.

Cyclists to ride for diabetes association

Imagine a group of motorcycles stretching out ten miles over the highway. At approximately 4:50 a.m. on Saturday, August 21, over 1,000 motorcyclists will stop at the I-75 Grayling rest area on their way to the Mackinaw Bridge. These motorcyclists will be riding for both fun and the American Diabetes Association in the 7th Annual Midnight Ride of Paul Revere (Without Paul). Leading the way through the darkness, in his Paul Revere hat, is Ron Rowe of Grand Rapids. Rowe and fellow ride coordinator Dave Rusch have diabetes.

What began seven years ago as a ride to beat the summer heat, with 56 motorcycles and 87 participants, has grown into one of the largest organized motorcycle rides in Michigan. The "Midnight Ride" organizers, Gold Wing Road Riders Association (GWRRA), Chapter G of Grand Rapids, expect their 1993 event to draw nearly 2,500 motorcyclists from the U.S. and Canada. Last year 2,000.

Motorists should watch for deer

On those hazy summer evenings when there's just a hint of fog in the air, making the road a little tough to see, are the nights the deer like to roam the highway.

Being alert in fog or darkness, especially on rural roads is one way to prevent another animal crash, but buckling up prevents you from becoming a casualty in a wildlife accident.

This doesn't help Michigan drivers — deer can be as dangerous as another car; they blend in the backgrounds and leap out quickly from the roadside. In Michigan in 1991, there were 48,233 deer-related automobile crashes.

ATTENDS HOCKEY CAMP--Derek Gregorich attended the Michigan Technological University Hockey Development Center, August 1-6, to improve and enhance his hockey skills. At the camp, he honed his stickhandling, passing, shooting, skating and checking skills through rigorous drills and challenging scrimmages. In addition to his on-ice activities, he trained in the off-ice development center. During the week, each participant not only was involved in classroom instruction, which included video critique, but also received a full written evaluation at the conclusion of the camp. Michigan Technological University, home of three NCAA Championship hockey teams, started the hockey development center 22 years ago under its legendary hockey coach John MacInnes. Instructors, including top high school and college coaches, along with current professional and former Tech players, provide individual coaching for young hockey players ages eight through 17.

County building authority named by commissioners

By Terry Wright

Sheriff David Lovely, County Treasurer Joseph Wakeley, and Lovells retiree Frank Robles were named to the Crawford County Building Authority at the County Board of Commissioners' meeting last Wednesday.

A lifelong resident of Grayling, Lovely assumed his position as sheriff on January 1. Prior to his election as sheriff, Lovely served as a deputy with that department for many years.

Wakeley, also a lifelong Grayling resident, has been the Crawford County Treasurer since 1973.

Parents warned of safety seat recalls

There are many child restraint seats on the market that have been recalled in the last few months. Currently, there are 13 seats manufactured between 1987 and 1991 that are defective in some way. Parents need to be aware of these recalls in order to keep their children safe.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) has announced that response to child safety

Frank Robles retired as a supervisor in 1991 with Michigan Bell Telephone Company in Lansing, where he served for 24 years. He lists a background that includes, "solid, practical experience and hands-on knowledge," in all aspects of building skills.

The building authority holds the responsibility of approving or rejecting structural changes, and issuing bonds to finance structural changes to the Crawford County Courthouse.

The three appointees will begin their responsibilities immediately with the pending jail addition project.

COMMISSION ON AGING

By Jan Farley

We will host a free health screening, sponsored by Michigan Rural Institute on Aging, through Kirtland Community College. This will be a six-week series beginning August 18 at 5:30 p.m. at the Senior Center, 308 Lawndale. The "Apple-A-Day" Series will feature guest speaker Laura Labo on the subject, "Body Recall." For health awareness and disease prevention, come to the center for this important first meeting.

Forty-one seniors made the trek to Houghton Lake Senior Center last week for lunch and were entertained with some great dance music provided by Zen and his group. They will be playing here on September 9th for one of our dances.

"Yes."

"The vote is three in favor, two against, and one abstention," Chairman Long stated. "The amendment passes."

It was decided that the additions to the amendment will be put in writing by NEMCOG as the solid waste management agency for Crawford County. When all additions and revisions are made, NEMCOG will send it back to the commissioners to review before it is forwarded to each of the townships and to the City of Grayling. The townships and the city will have the final opportunity, locally, to accept or reject the amendment.

If the amendment passes through the townships and city, it will be sent to DNR Director Roland Barnes for his signature before it can be implemented.

Confusion over the vote arose after the meeting, when several commissioners questioned the validity of the vote based on several questions.

Does an abstention constitute a negative vote or a non-vote? Is a three county board meeting stands as to two plurality of the voting members recorded: 3 ayes: 2 nays and 1 enough to pass the amendment or is a abstention? The letter was signed by two-thirds plurality of the entire six commissioners Smock and Coy.

Long addressed the room; "There seems to be a discrepancy on the outcome of the vote taken at the regular meeting held last Wednesday. A meeting this morning was agreed on by all six commissioners, but when I received a letter from two commissioners in objection to this meeting, I was obligated to cancel this meeting. It will not take place. Under our rules we are bound to having the support of all of the members to call a meeting within a time span of ten days.

We no longer have that support; therefore there will be no special meeting today. The next meeting of the six commissioners agreed to hold a special meeting to review and revoke on the amendment. The meeting was to be held on Friday, August 13, at 9 a.m. at the courthouse. In accordance with regulations, the Crawford County Clerk's office posted the meeting notice with the signatures of all six commissioners.

To clarify some of the confusion, the six commissioners agreed to hold a special meeting to review and revoke on the amendment. The meeting was to be held on Friday, August 13, at 9 a.m. at the courthouse.

According to Duell, if the Wednesday vote stands, the amendment proposal is a dead issue and does not continue on to the commissioners' office:
